

The Cradle

As a young miner in the Goldfields of Australia, you have just invented an amazing new piece of technology called the cradle. It is very important that the other miners in the settlement know about your invention and how to use it. The Governor has asked you to write an article about your invention and explain the purpose of the cradle and how to use it.

A line drawing of a wooden sled. On top of the sled is a rectangular box with a handle on its right side. The box is filled with small circles, representing stones or gravel. A long wooden pole is attached to the back of the box. The sled has two runners and a curved front.

A large rectangular area with horizontal lines, intended for writing or drawing.
