

Wednesday 10th June - Poetry

We have written acrostic poems before. Today I would like you to try a similar type of poem called a MESOSTIC. The key letters are mixed in the lines instead of just at the start. Here's an animal riddle.

Like a small Bear

Bundles over the dark road,

Brushes pAst the front gate

As if she owns the joint

Rolls the Dustbin

Like an expert barrel rider

Tucks into yesterday's Garbage,

Crunches worms for titbits.

Wakes us from dEp sleep

Blinks back at torchlight

Our midnight feasteR

Have a try with an animal of your own choice. Think about the way your chosen animal looks, sounds, acts and what it eats. Write the letters of your animal's name in a different colour to make them stand out like I have done in the badger poem.

Don't forget, finger spaces, capital letters and full stops.

Have fun and send them to me at WDV.Year3@Oasiswoodview.org
